Under the Real ID Act, would individuals with the purpose of court or court related activities be exempt from the Real ID Act and the existing agency policy will apply? With buildings that house multiple Federal agencies to include court and law enforcement, the assumption is security will have to attain the purpose of the individuals visit then apply the Real ID Act for agencies not covered under the limitations. Just wanted to get your read of this situation.

Limitations

Access for activities directly relating to safety and health or life preserving services, to law enforcement, and to constitutionally protected activities, including legal and investigative proceedings will not be affected. Existing agency policies will still apply.

Thank you for your inquiry, your email was forwarded to the Department's Office of Intergovernmental Affairs to respond. Unfortunately, the Department does not testify at State level hearings and we will not be able to join you on Wednesday, January 13th. If there are any specific questions related to REAL ID that you have please let us know. Also, we do want to bring to your attention the announcement made today by Secretary Johnson on the final enforcement dates for REAL ID. Please see below for that press release.

Press Release

STATEMENT BY SECRETARY JEH C. JOHNSON ON THE FINAL PHASE OF REAL ID ACT IMPLEMENTATION

Today I announce the schedule for the final phase of implementation of the REAL ID Act. Bottom line up front: Effective January 22, 2018, air travelers with a driver's license or identification card issued by a state that does not meet the requirements of the REAL ID Act (unless that state has been granted an extension to comply with the Act) must present an alternative form of identification acceptable to the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) in order to board a commercial domestic flight. Over the next two years, those states that are not REAL ID compliant are strongly encouraged to meet the requirements of the law for the benefit of their residents.

In 2004, the 9/11 Commission recommended that the U.S. government set standards for the issuance of "sources of identification, such as driver's licenses." The Commission recognized that "[s]ources of identification are the last opportunity to ensure that people are who they say they are and to check whether they are terrorists."

In accordance with that recommendation, Congress enacted the REAL ID Act. This law prohibits federal agencies from accepting for official purposes driver's licenses and identification cards issued by states that do not meet the law's standards for secure issuance and production. The law charges the Department of Homeland Security with establishing minimum requirements for these standards. So, for a license or identification card to be REAL ID compliant, the state issuing it must, for example, incorporate anti-counterfeit technology into the card, verify the applicant's identity, and conduct background checks for employees involved in issuing driver's licenses.

The overall goal of the REAL ID Act passed by Congress is to prevent the fraudulent issuance and use of driver's licenses and identification cards, thereby ensuring the safety and security of the American public. Given today's threat environment, this requirement is as relevant now as it was when the 9/11 Commission recommended it.

Since its enactment, the Department of Homeland Security has implemented the law in careful phases, including most recently at military bases, most federal facilities, and nuclear power plants. Throughout this period, we have worked closely with states to support them in coming into compliance with the REAL ID Act standards. Now it is time to move toward final implementation of the law.

At present, 23 states are fully compliant with the REAL ID Act, and the Department has used its authority to grant states extensions when they demonstrate steps toward compliance. Thus, 27 states and territories have been granted extensions for a period of time to become compliant. Six states and territories – Illinois, Minnesota, Missouri, New Mexico, Washington, and American Samoa – are noncompliant and do not currently have extensions.

We have now reached the final phase of implementation of the REAL ID Act, which relates to commercial air travel. These are the timelines for that final phase:

- Effective immediately, the Department of Homeland Security will conduct outreach to educate the traveling public about the timeline below, and continue engagements with states to encourage compliance with REAL ID standards.
- Starting July 15, 2016, TSA, in coordination with airlines and airport stakeholders, will begin to issue web-based advisories and notifications to the traveling public.
- Starting December 15, 2016, TSA will expand outreach at its airport checkpoints through signage, handouts, and other methods.
- Starting January 22, 2018, passengers with a driver's license issued by a state that is still not compliant with the REAL ID Act (and has not been granted an extension) will need to show an alternative form of acceptable identification for domestic air travel to board their flight. To check whether your state is compliant or has an extension, click here. Passengers with driver's licenses issued by a state that is compliant with REAL ID (or a state that has been issued an extension) will still be able to use their driver's licenses or identification cards.

- Starting October 1, 2020, every air traveler will need a REAL ID-compliant license, or another acceptable form of identification, for domestic air travel.

Important: Right now, no individual needs to adjust travel plans, or rush out to get a new driver's license or a passport for domestic air travel. Until January 22, 2018, residents of all states will still be able to use a state-issued driver's license or identification card for domestic air travel. Passengers can also continue to use any of the various other forms of identification accepted by TSA (such as a Passport or Passport Card, Global Entry card, U.S. military ID, airline or airport-issued ID, federally recognized tribal-issued photo ID).

Travelers are encouraged to check the REAL ID compliance status of their state on the DHS website and review TSA's list of acceptable forms of identification. Travelers may also check with their state's driver's licensing agency about how to acquire a REAL ID compliant license.

Finally, we know that some states must change their laws to comply with the REAL ID Act. That is why we have determined to set the timetable above, and have provided extensions to several states. I urge state government leaders to take immediate action to comply with the REAL ID Act, to ensure the continued ability of their residents to fly unimpeded. It is time to move toward final compliance with this law.

Tribal IDs are outside the scope of REAL ID.

REAL ID only applies to state-issued driver's license and identification cards. Your members and officials will be able to use Pueblo-issued photo ID for said purposes.

Laguna Pueblo, located in New Mexico, is concerned about its tribal officials and members being prevented from accessing GSA-managed federal agency buildings, Congressional representatives, and domestic air travel in light of New Mexico state-issued driver's licenses being non-compliant with REAL ID criteria. Our Pueblo issues a photo-ID to its members. Will our members and officials be able to use Pueblo-issued photo ID for such purposes?

Mr. Aldrich,

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Currently you may find a list of acceptable forms of identification in the Interagency Security Committee Guide at the link below in Appendix B, page 9.
<http://www.dhs.gov/publication/isc-real-id-guide>

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:

Type:	Note

hi there. i'm working on an article for the NYT Travel section updating readers on the Real ID Act as it pertains to identification when boarding commercial flights.

i have a few questions and wanted to clarify some of the information I've read from other sources and would sincerely appreciate a call from someone in your office to do so.

my deadline is ASAP as we're trying to include this in our next issue. i've included most of my questions below in case its more convenient for someone to respond by email:

- to clarify for our readers, the Real ID Act was passed in 2005, and enforcement began in 2013, with the first of four phases. is that correct?

- when do you anticipate the evaluation noted on the DHS "Real ID In Brief" webpage to conclude?

- when do you anticipate Phase 4 will officially be enforced (extensions excluded), as it pertains to boarding commercial aircraft?

- i see from the DHS "Real ID In Brief" webpage, that 18 states/territories are currently awaiting approval on an extension to continue use of their current drivers licenses when boarding commercial aircraft. am i correct that this extension would likely only be through Jan. 10? what happens if they are denied the extension?

- am i correct that New Hampshire is the only state with an extension through June 1, 2016? if so, why is that?

- how long have non-compliant states known about the roll out of Phase 4 as it pertains to boarding commercial aircraft?

- why do you think some states have not changed their drivers license requirements in order to comply with the Act?

- can you please confirm which ID's are acceptable as a second form of identification, to be used by those from states with non-compliant drivers' licenses?

- is the 3-month forgiveness period mentioned in your latest press release supposed to occur prior to the expiration of a state's extension period, or after the extension period expires?

thanks for any assistance.

Regarding the state specific requirements you will need to contact the Arizona DMV as we do not have purview of their requirements here in this office.

While we have set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports this will not begin until Jan. 22, 2018. A REAL ID compliant card will not take the place of the passport if traveling Internationally.

Also without a REAL ID compliant identification you may not be able to enter federal facilities.

Aloha,

I am a USA citizen with a REAL-ID Hawaii license, and I was wondering if this satisfies the enhanced license requirement specifically to go into Canada and back. I also have my birth certificate.

I'm more wondering about re-entering the USA after my trip. We are driving to Canada and back through Niagara Falls.

Thank you!!

When they rent they need to connect to different utilities like Warter. The city requires Real ID to connect the utilities.

They have a valet passport and/or Non-profit Organization ID with: Photo, DOB, signature, address and date of issue and date of expirer.

I need information if they can use the passport and/or Non-profit Organization ID to connect the utilities.

Subject: ID Question for Domestic Travel

Good morning,

I received a new license in the state of Wisconsin at the end of March 2016, and it says Not for Federal Purposes on the upper righthand corner of my driver's license. It wasn't mentioned to me at the time that I had the option of receiving a REAL ID, so I proceeded with a regular driver's license. Will I be able to fly domestically for the time being until all travelers must present a REAL ID in January 2020? I am flying to Seattle in two weeks and am concerned that my license will not be acceptable, and I unfortunately do not have a passport. Any help/advice you can provide me is much appreciated.

Thank you for your assistance!

I do understand important for ID a person, but there is other form of doing so. We have to understand that we have immigration how came to work and help there family. My question is: watt ID dose the community need if they don't have a Driver License (Can a Passport be a ID )to connect any utility. Can you send me the list all official ID and went it is needed. Example to enter a Federal building watt ID and to connect utility watt ID is needed.

Subject: TSA acceptable ID - Florida Drivers License

Hello,

I have been advised twice now by TSA Officials at Tampa, Fl airport that my Fl Driver's License is not acceptable as ID because it has the word 'temporary' on it, due to the fact that the expiry runs in line with my US Visa/I94. I have been through your website and cannot see anywhere where it says this should not be accepted at airports (and other airports do not seem to have this issue).

The documentation required for me to obtain the License was if anything more rigorous than for a US National (same docs as for US Nationals plus copies of I94 and US Visa) so I do not understand why this would be unacceptable as ID at the airport.

Could you explain please?

Regards,

Dear Sir or Madam;

I have gone over, and read all the Q&A in reference to the "Real ID". I understand all that was written. However, no place in any of the explanations or the Q&A sections (the DHS and my home state NH) did I say anything that indicated that I could use the Real ID to cross the border into Canada. Could you please clear this question up for me? Thank you in advance for your time, and I hope to hear from you soon.

Subject: RE: Real ID compliance

I'm now finding myself more confused, but not so much in the action of the compliance, but in the spirit of it.

In the way this was just presented, this does not allow Americans the freedom to be nomadic, to live freely and without being anchored to things such as home ownership, rent payments, monthly utility bills, etc., and still be able to maintain their CDL (or maybe even bdl or adl licenses) in which to actually support themselves.

I apologize for this on going communication, but as it seems that I'm being forced to actually commit to a fixed residence in order to simply supper myself and desired new life of enjoying the nation I served on my terms, that there is a very important accepting to the rule missing that accommodates those of that wish to still be Americans but not to be tied to the usual life constraints.

In example, suppose that I continue to live as a guest of my best friend, in his home. I have a job (or not, really) but none of the utilities are in my name. No different than a girlfriend moving in with me where I pay for all of my contracts, right?

So, even in this scenario, because the utilities are not mine, but I live there, how do I comply?

I AM a citezen, bred and born, which I CAN prove, an honorably discharged snd incredibly patriotic American, but live in the home of a friend. There has to be a specific means that accommodates Americans that meet these circumstances. If not, then this REAL ID act appears to have ulterior implications; implications that appear to be designed to force Americans to live in a manner that is dictated by whatever entity that is behind the act. I'm happy to comly, truly, but I need assistance/direction/information from the government that helps me protect my freedoms and pursuit of happiness, while helping secure our nation from threats.

So, I guess that is what I'm asking for now. How do I comply with the act, maintain my ability to support myself (cdl), and live in the fashion of my choosing, one that does not force me to become attached to public utility companies?

Can you help me navigate this act, so that I can comply snd still live in the fashion in which I believe I have the right to do? Please?

Thank you for any assistance.

Iowa is a REAL ID compliant state and only issues REAL ID compliant driver's licenses. The Iowa clerk is correct in requiring you to present a certified birth certificate and two proof of address to transfer your CDL to Iowa. Under REAL ID and the Commercial Driver License Regulations individuals wishing to obtain a Iowa REAL ID compliant CDL must present proof of principal residence or address of domicile. It is the intention of both regulations to identify where individuals actually reside and not mask where they live to avoid possible sanctions associated with unsafe driving practices or the fraudulent use of identification documents. Simply providing a PO Box does not meet the regulations. As you mentioned it is your intention to live in Iowa in "name only" and not actually reside there. To answer you basic question Iowa is issuing driver's licenses in compliance with the requirements of the REAL ID regulation.

Thank you so much for the very rapid response! Truly a service to the public.

In the information provided (including the two links) it became clear to me that I did not clearly state my concerns or question. This is my fault, please do not feel as though I'm holding this against you. You've done a superb job. Thank you for that.

So here's my fear/concern. I am a veteran, honorably served and discharged. I have a VA issued ID card. I have my DD214. I also possess a valid CDL.

When I went in to the local Iowa office to update the address on my CDL the clerk stated that because it was a CDL that I would HAVE to update it to the new REAL ID by a specific month in 2018 or forfeit my CDL privileges.

I asked her what it takes to comply and her response was that I needed to provide my embossed birth certificate and two legitimate forms of documentation proving my residency at the address I'm claiming.

Therein lies the problem. Though I live there, nothing there is in my name and I do not get mail at that address. It goes to my PO Box because of my fluidity of location. And eventually I will not even live there, physically, but in name only.

The links you've provided did not seem to address this issue. The entire program 'seems' to be tailored to those of our society that choose to live traditionally, leaving those of us living freely across our nation left scratching our heads, wondering how we can comply. For example, if I am in Portland, OR., and one of my loved ones turns unexpectedly terminal, I am not allowed the privilege of driving to their bedside because my CDL privilege has been revoked (according to the clerk locally) because I failed to comply with the standards that require that I provide something along the lines of a utility bill, proving my legal and fixed 'physical' address.

The way the clerk presented this, I either comply with what she said I 'must' possess, or I simply will no longer be allowed to operate my vehicle that requires a CDL. I see that this notion is 'not' so according to what you've presented, but is there more to the requirements to be in compliance, or do the states have the option to create biased scenarios to meet the federal requirements? Or, could it be that Iowa has interpreted the guidelines well beyond the spectrum or scope of the program.

I was directed by her to this website for clarification, but as it seems right now, the Iowa level of compliance has taken a step that seems to be beyond their range of authority, constitutionally.

Are you able to clarify this any further for me....(I hope)?

Regards,

(b)(6)

To whomever may be able to assist me,

I am about to embark in a new life for myself, that being nomadic. Because I will no longer have a physical address (which I do not think is unlawful), but will still be a citizen of this great nation that I'm about to explore, how do I comply with whatever regulations and laws support the real ID act?

As far as vehicle registration is concerned, my technical home port will be my best friend's home (he invited me to live with him when my wife of 28 years decided she no longer wanted to be married). But as I've come to believe I've overstayed my welcome (my view, not his), and I am now free to live life (due to the divorce), how do I legally comply with the requirements of the Real ID Act and still follow MY dreams of a nomadic or gypsy life exploring the very nation I served in the US for?

I cannot find the method of achieving this in any details I've read anywhere.

Thank you for helping me resolve this issue.

Hello. I live in a compliant state (Connecticut) but do NOT have a Real ID. My driver's license expires in 2021. Connecticut says I do NOT need to exchange for a Real ID - I can just wait until it expires and get one then.

But the DHS website is ambiguous - it seems to imply that since I come from a compliant state, I DO need a Real ID by January 22, 2018. Or does the website mean that since I simply LIVE in a compliant state, it is ok to keep using my non-federal driver's license until it actually expires?

The EDL's are above and beyond the REAL ID requirements and can be utilized for cross border travel.

The CDL is a state issued documents and cannot be used to travel across the border.

You can find the latest information and requirements regarding the REAL ID program at the link below:

Subject: Real ID vs CDLs

Had a question about CDLs vs EDLs, particularly in Washington State, but we do get out of state traffic.

Do Commercial Driver's License (CDL) meet Real ID requirements like Enhanced Drivers licenses (EDL)?

Thx,

Subject: REAL ID Question - Temporary Driver's License

Good morning,

I couldn't find information pertaining to temporary licenses issued by states currently listed as an extension state for compliance with the REAL ID Act. I am a semi-frequent flyer in the process of changing my name (recent marriage) and have a temporary driver's license from NH with my new name. I do have a passport with my maiden name and used it for identification for my recent flight because we had not changed my name with the airline at that point. When I change my name on my account with the airline, my boarding tickets will match my temporary driver's license and not my passport. My question is this: what constitutes a valid form of identification for TSA check points in regards to the REAL ID Act? In other words, will my temporary ID be accepted OR should I wait to change my name with the airline?

Thank you in advance,

(b)(6)

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

The REAL ID Act only applies to state issued identification documents such as driver's licenses and identification cards. A REAL ID may not be used in lieu of a passport.

For information on passports you may want to visit the U.S. Department of State's web site at <http://www.state.gov>.

To whom it might concern,

I have a driver's license with the identification on it. I know it can be used for airlines as ID, but can it act in the place of a passport when crossing the border into Canada or Mexico? Also is it acceptable on airlines for international flights? Thank you for your time.

Only the states on the non-compliant list without an extension need to be recorded.

WA, MN, MO and American Samoa are on that list at the moment.

Please let me know if you need anything further?

Good morning,

Please see the attached Real ID Report for the month of June. Additionally, could someone please advise whether we still need to report for the states that are no longer considered a non-compliant state?

Thank you,
